As you all know, the Pfizer-BioNTech vaccine has been approved for people who are 12-15 years old. Young people should get vaccinated because they can play a role in the spread of the virus, even if they don't get very sick or have any symptoms at all.

Vaccinated students will also not be required to quarantine if they are exposed to the virus, which means they will not have to miss class, sporting events, or other school activities if they have contact with someone who had the virus. It's a major step towards safety and stability for families and our communities.

We are continuing to offer vaccine clinics through schools. When students are vaccinated at schools, they only need written consent from their parent or legal guardian. This simplifies the process, and I hope many families will take advantage of it. At all other clinics, people age 12-17 will need a parent or legal guardian or representative present in order to get vaccinated.

The order directs the commission to increase the number of adjudications being processed per week from 5,700 to 10,000 by June 30, and to 20,000 by July 31.

In a news release, Northam's of-While data show Virginia has fice said that would be done in part by finalizing a $5 million contract for over 300 additional adjudication officers. The directive also tells the commission to work with the state's human resources agency to identify non-VEC state workers who can temporarily assist.

Jeff Jones, a spokesman for the Legal Aid Justice Center, one of the firms representing the plaintiffs, said the parties had reached an agreement Tuesday, which the judge still must approve. If approved, he said the judge was expected to enter an order later in the Lastly, on Friday, Governor Northam lifted Virginia's mask mandate following the CDC's new guidelines stating vaccinated people do not need to wear masks in most indoor and outdoor public settings. At this point, the science is clear. Fully vaccinated folks are protected and can really resume their normal activities. However, localities, universities and businesses will still have their own requirements. We ask everybody to be patient with this fast-changing situation. Please give our businesses some grace - many are waiting for changes in guidance from Virginia's Department of Labor and Industry.

I know you likely have questions about this change, but I would direct them to the Virginia Department of Health, which will have the most up-to-date information on how these new policies will be implemented.

DMV to Expand Appointment Opportunities

RICHMOND - In line with Governor Ralph Northam's announcement today to ease current COVID-19 restrictions, the Virginia Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) will open more windows in its customer service centers beginning June 1, creating 184,000 additional appointment opportunities across the Commonwealth.

Customers can begin to schedule these new appointments next week. Additional windows will open in stages on June 1, June 15 and in July as DMV continues to hire and train new employees to expand appointment availability, adding to the more than 530,000 appointments Virginians already have scheduled over the next three months.

"Virginians have told us they appreciate the convenience and high quality service the appointment system affords," Commissioner Richard D. Holcomb said. "The Governor's announcement today enables us to open more windows so customers can secure appointments sooner, but we are still taking great care to offer service that is safe for everyone."

Big Month In The Guthrie Family

In graduation ceremonies held this month at Virginia Tech, Brendan Guthrie of Dublin received a Bachelor of Science degree in Geography from the College of Natural Resources & Environment, graduated from the Virginia Tech Corps of Cadets, and commissioned as a Lieutenant in the United States Army. Guthrie was a 4-year Army ROTC Scholarship student. In the Corps of Cadets he was a member of the Highty Tighties, the Regimental Marching Band. He served as a section leader, company first sergeant, and his senior year was a company commander. Also while a cadet, he earned the German Armed Forces Proficiency Badge, one of the only foreign distinctions allowed on a US Army uniform. He was also selected for the CCWP, a foreign training exercise program in conjunction with the Armed Forces of the Philippines. His training included earning the Philippines Air-to-Ground Operations Badge. Following that, he completed Airborne School at Fort Benning, Georgia and earned his Airborne Wings. He was also captain of Virginia Tech's Army 10 Miler Team. Guthrie graduated Summa Cum Laude, the highest level of honors, with a 3.8 grade point average with a major in Geography and minors in Geographic Information Systems (GIS), Political Science, and Leadership. He will begin his army career in the Armor Branch and will report for active duty to Fort Benning in July. Guthrie is a 2017 graduate of Pulaski County High School. Here, his parents Carol and Joe Guthrie pin his Lieutenant bars on his uniform.

Safe boating week set for May 22-28

RICHMOND, VA — National Safe Boating Week is May 22-28 and the Virginia Department of Wildlife Resources (DWR) is reminding all boaters to stay safe this summer, and always wear a life jacket while on the water. A good day on the water can turn tragic in seconds. No matter where you boat-from large lakes and rivers to small farm ponds—wearing a life jacket is essential for safety!

While getting ready for the boating season, boaters should make sure they have U.S. Coast Guard approved life jackets in good condition that fit every occupant of the boat, including children. Safe boating week is a great time to inspect your gear including your inflatable life jacket. Inflatable life jackets make it easy for adults to "Wear It" while enjoying their time on the water and being a good role model for young people on their boats.

No matter what time of year you go boating, always let someone know where you are going and when you expect to return. Also, have a plan to reboard your boat in case the unexpected happens and you end up in the water.

Weather conditions and a marine forecast can be found on the National Weather Service website. The United States Geological Survey has water temperatures for some inland lakes and rivers.

OPINION

Now is the Time to Stand With Israel

Israel has faced many crises since its establishment as a modern state. In fact, it faced war at the hands of neighboring Arab countries immediately upon declaring independence from British control on May 14, 1948.

In the 73 years since, conflict and strife have recurred. Fortunately, so has progress, from the Camp David Accords forging peace between Israel and Egypt in 1978 to the Abraham Accords of last year establishing relations between Israel and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) and Bahrain.

Now Israel faces another crisis. Militants based in the Gaza Strip have fired thousands of rockets into Israel. These rockets fall upon civilians in their homes and on the streets. As of May 17, ten people have been killed in the attacks, and Israelis are forced to seek refuge repeatedly in bomb shelters. The Israeli Defense Force has responded with airstrikes.

The Gaza Strip is controlled by Hamas, a militant organization that denies Israel's very right to exist. Tensions between Hamas and Israel have led to broader hostilities repeatedly over the years, but the current conflict is the most serious since 2014.

Self-defense is the right of a country. It is a primary reason why countries have governments at all. Israel is no exception, and as a friend and ally of the United States, Israel deserves the support of the U.S.

government during its time of need. American-Israeli partnership has already 9th District demonstrated tance to saving lives in the region during this crisis. As Hamas launches rockets at Israel, many of them are intercepted by Iron Dome, a defense system that uses targeting systems and radar to identify and missiles to destroy incoming rockets targeted at sensitive areas, including population centers.

While missile defense has long been an objective of U.S. military policy, systems such as President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative aimed at intercepting long-range missiles. Israel, however, is a small country just over 70 miles across at its widest, and adversaries such as Hamas border it. Defense systems thus need to protect against rockets fired at much shorter ranges. An Israeli company took the lead on developing Iron Dome, but the United States provided financial support. Our country in return later gained access to proprietary Iron Dome technology, and parts for the system are produced here in the United States.

Iron Dome came online in 2011 and proved successful. During a conflict in 2012, it intercepted 85 percent of 400 rockets fired at Israel. The 2014 hostilities with Hamas once again saw Iron Dome successfully play a major role in keeping Israelis safe, with accuracy apparently around 90 percent. The U.S.-Israeli partnership produced a system that keeps Israelis safe and reduces the outbreak of more widespread violent conflict.

The present conflict has tested Iron Dome once more. The night sky over Israel lights up with rockets and interceptors. Hamas has attempted to overwhelm the defense system by firing barrages of rockets quickly. Although Iron Dome has largely risen to the challenge, Hamas' current tactics highlight a potential vulnerability in the system.

More broadly, the current crisis also highlights why efforts to secure peace between Israel and its neighbors are important, and why the achievements of the Trump Administration in the Abraham Accords were remarkable.

Critics of the Trump Administration liked to point out that parties to the agreement such as the UAE and Bahrain were not at war with Israel. They ignore the fact that anti-Israel groups such as Hamas and Hezbollah depend on support from countries in the region, and engaging more of Israel's neighbors dries up support for these militants to conduct their cruel crusades against civilians.

The most important state backer of anti-Israel violence is Iran. Any Middle East policy that respects our historic partnership with Israel must not enable Iran to devote more of its resources to violence against Israel.

At the time of this writing, no ceasefire has been agreed upon, but I hope to see one soon. Until then, it is time to stand with Israel. As it fights enemies that deny its right to exist, the United States must be clear in condemning Hamas and supporting our ally.

The Protected Church -St. Paul's Chapel

It is said that St. Paul's Chapel is one of the oldest buildings in New York City...specifically in Manhattan, where it is considered the only colonial-era church still standing. It's historic significance is monumental for it is where George Washington, the first President of the United States of America, led congressional leaders after his inauguration, to pray and dedicate the new nation to God. Washington and several other historic figures continued to worship at St. Paul's Chapel until the seat of government was moved from New York City to Philadelphia in 1790.

At the time it was constructed in 1766 on land granted by Anne, Queen of Great Britain (significantly important in the American Revolution), it was located on the outskirts of the city surrounded by farmland. It served as an outreach chapel of Trinity Church because the church, which was a few blocks south of the chapel, was inconveniently accessible only by unpaved

Among the destroyed buildings was Trinity Church, but St. Paul's Chapel miraculously

The Republican dilemma

By Cal Thomas, Tribune Content Agency

Observing the ouster of Rep. Liz Cheney (R-Wyo.) from her House leadership position and her criticism of former president Donald Trump, reminded me of a '70s TV ad for Listerine mouthwash. The company attempted to use the product's bad taste to its advantage. The ad said: "It's got the taste people hate - twice

The Republican establishment may hate Donald Trump, but they would be hardpressed to deny how effective his policies were, pre-COVID-19. The 74 millionpeople who voted for him is a formidable number. Whatever some may think of his personality -- and I deplore how he demeans others -- no one can credibly deny he was more successful than any modern Republican president. The question is, can he do it again? Last year's election was unique due to the pandemic with many using mail-in ballots, fearful of going to the polls. That appeared to drive up the number of voters.

Cheney's main distaste for Trump is that he continues to claim the 2020 election was fraudulent and that he should have been declared the winner. I won't go down that dead-end road again. I will point out that people have short memories, especially when the major media do not report that contesting election outcomes is not unique to Donald Trump.

An exception was a New York Times opinion column in January 2020. University of Iowa law professor Derek T. Muller, who specializes in election law, wrote: "After Republican victories in 2000, 2004 and 2016. ... Democrats in Congress used the formal counting of electoral votes as an opportunity to challenge election results." How soon we forget.

Liz Cheney appeared last week on Fox News' "Special Report" with Bret Baier. She berated the network for what she said was their enabling of Trump's election fraud narrative and for promoting "The Big Lie." Cheney failed to mention four years of claims by Democrats -- augmented by the major media -- that Russia helped Trump "steal" the 2016 election. Special Counsel John Durham, who was appointed by former Attorney General William Barr, has spent two years investigating the source of that hoax but has not issued a report.

Trump could help himself not only with Republican leaders, but also voters, especially should he choose to run again in 2024, by focusing on the future, not the past. Joe Biden will not be removed from office, but if Trump stopped reliving 2020 and started concentrating on congressional races next year (while also continuing to attack President Biden's failed policies), Republicans would be in a far stronger position to retake the House and possibly the Senate. This would set the stage for a Republican presidential victory in 2026, assuming the issues and not Trump's personality are the focus.

Cheney is obsessed with Trump. She can't let him go and he won't let her go. Without his Facebook and Twitter accounts, Trump still issues statements -- sometimes several a day -- promoting people who support and praise him and calling people names who oppose him.

Name-calling doesn't persuade or win issues. Perhaps his rants, directed at people he dislikes, as well as his praise for those he admires is not his main goal. It is meant to keep his base engaged. Trump followers hate the Washington Establishment (aka The Swamp) and are preparing for the next battle with Trump as their leader. Trump's planned resumption of rallies next month may show how strongly he retains his base. He must also attract swing voters who largely abandoned him last year because they were turned off by his denunciation of others.

Like that old Listerine ad, some Republicans and a lot of Democrats and the media may hate him. but they are using him more than twice a day. He is also using them.

Biden's child care folly

Joe Biden has a New Deal for America's kids.

He wants to spend more than $225 billion on child care for infants and toddlers, and $200 billion for free, universal preschool for 3- and 4-year-olds.

This is being hailed as a social revolution that will finally bring the United States in line with other advanced democracies.

In reality, it's a program that shows a pronounced class bias. And since it is heedless of the experience of other such mass programs in the United States and around the world, the Biden approach is also likely to fail to achieve its goals.

It's just not true, as the Biden program assumes, that parents of young children are eager to shuttle them off to industrialized daycare or pre-K programs. An extensive survey for the populist thinktank American Compass found a stark class divide in how couples think about child care. The survey asked couples if they preferred to have one parent working full time while the other parent provides child care in the home, or to have both parents working and using child care full time. One parent working was the preference of strong majorities of working-class (68%) and lower-class couples (58%), with a plurality of middle-class couples (38%) agreeing. Only a plurality of upper-class couples preferred the child care option (44%). So, Biden is talking about using taxpayer dollars to create as a default an arrangement that most parents would rather avoid.

Then, there are outcomes. In a paper earlier this year for the Manhattan Institute, researcher Max Eden reviewed the litera-

The programs that have produced the most remarkable positive outcomes over the years tend to be small, expensive, and ery difficult to replicate.

On the other side of the ledger, there's the Ouebec Family Policy. The Canada province developed a crash program in the late 1990s that rapidly expanded child care with generally deleterious effects. Researchers found increased behavioral, social, and health problems for the kids, and interestingly, worse outcomes for parents, too. The results were, in the words of one authoritative study, "striking in their consistent indication of a substantial negative impact of universal child care on children in two-parent families.'

The exception in Quebec, per another study, was children from single-parent families, where positive results were "particularly large for individuals at the very bottom of the distribution."

The Quebec outcomes, as Eden notes, accord with what's been found elsewhere -- child care is best for disadvantaged children and worst for children from two-parent families.

As for pre-K, the largest study of Head Start, the federal program for low-income children, found any early benefits faded by the third grade. Other research has been more encouraging. But a rigorous, randomized DUBLIN - The building that's home to the Dublin Volunteer Fire Department is sporting a new look and feel thanks to a generous gift from the AEP Foundation.

With a nearly $25,000 Foundation grant, the agency installed new windows and lighting to improve the building's overall energy efficiency.

"We can't thank the Foundation enough for this tremendous gift," said Fire Marshal Robbie Cecil. "We couldn't have done this work without the grant and you can already feel the difference the improvements have made in the building."

The grant also had an unexpected ripple effect in the community. The Fire Department sought bids for the purchase and installation of the windows and lighting, and two local companies were awarded the contract.

Explore Mediterranean Foods for Health

By Kim Butterfield, MPH Family and Consumer Science Agent, Roanoke/Salem

New research is regularly being conducted to explore the benefits of the Mediterranean style of eating. As the University of Arizona Cooperative Extension explains, this dietary pattern "emphasizes plant-based foods, such as fruit and vegetables, whole grains, legumes, nuts, fish, lean meat, and healthy fat." Key ingredients of the eating pattern include olive oil, fish (which are high in omega-3 fatty acids), and moderate amounts of wine. Current research suggests that the Mediterranean style of eating may positively impact one's risk of Alzheimer's disease, coronary heart disease, diabetes, and being overweight.

The Mediterranean dietary pattern also includes some non-diet related daily recommendations including regular hoods.

Find your local farmers market by visiting the Virginia Farmers Market Association website (www.vafma.org) or call your local Virginia Cooperative Extension office for help. survived thanks to a change in the wind direction and a bucket brigade.

As reported by John Joseph Henry, an American prisoner aboard the British Warship HMS Pearl, "The fire raged into the daylight hours and was stopped by changes in wind direction as much as by the actions of some of the citizenry and British marines sent, according to Henry, 'in aid of the inhabitants'." That was a miraculous turn of events since the British were the occupying army and considered the enemy of the newly formed government.

Arson was a suspected motive, but more than 200 suspects were interrogated, with no charges ever brought; so it was never determined who set the fire – whether it was the occupying British or the Americans.

The surviving homes of known Patriots were confiscated by the British and given for the use of British officers. Churches, other than those of the Church of England, were turned into prisons, infirmaries and British barracks. Apparently, St. Paul's Chapel was spared. Under the protection of the Church of England, constructed on land given by Anne, Queen of Great Britain, it was undefiled and exempt from this use.

St. Paul's Chapel has witnessed monumental changes in the last 255 years since it was built. Manhattan's Financial District grew up around the Chapel, including the World Trade Center which was less than 100 yards away.

The Chapel miraculously survived another disaster on September 11, 2001 when terrorists crashed airplanes into the Twin Towers, causing all the surrounding buildings to collapse and burn – except St. Paul's Chapel which survived "without a scratch or a pane of broken glass."

As most know, after 9/11, St. Paul's Chapel was the epicenter of an extraordinary continuous relief ministry to first responders, rescue workers and recovery workers. For over nine months weary men and women feverishly working to help their fellow Americans found food, rest and spiritual encouragement in the Chapel, often sleeping on the floor or pews.

Messianic Rabbi Jonathan Cahn has conducted extensive research about the miraculous survival of St. Paul's Chapel. A full explanation can be found in his book, The Harbinger. His premise is that after the collapse of the surrounding buildings during the 9/11 attacks, a shock wave was created that damaged most buildings in the area. Only one building was not harmed - St. Paul's Chapel, which was protected by a sycamore tree whose roots, it is believed, absorbed the blast. He ties scripture to current events and warns America to return to her Biblical foundations.

Cahn points out that St. Paul's Chapel was the place where America's first President, George Washington, prayed and dedicated the government of the United States to God after his inauguration on April 30, 1789.

President Washington said it first, "...the propitious smiles of Heaven, can never be expected on a nation that disregards the eternal rules of order and right. which Heaven itself has ordained..."

Chan believes America was being warned again: "If America turns away from God, then the blessings of Heaven will be withdrawn."

French folklore tells us that in Marseilles, four men repeatedly looted the homes of deceased victims but, miraculously, never got sick. According to one version of the story, after the forced to bury the dead, with the promise that if they survived they would go free.

Well, survive they did-apparently thanks to an herbal vinegar tincture concocted by one of the bad guys, who happened to be a herbalist. As the gang's resistance to the disease became obvious, other folks began using the potion. Today, natural-health gurus still swear by the amazing healing power of Four Thieves Vinegar.

control study of low-income kids in an extensive pre-K program in Tennessee showed initial gains washed away and then, over time, participants had worse academic and behavioral outcomes.

The research of James Heckman, a Nobel Prize-winning economist at the University of Chicago who studied one of the most successful programs, is often cited by advocates of the Biden plan. In an interview last year, though, Heckman stipulated that he has never supported universal pre-K. He said the benefits of a loving, engaged family have never been adequately measured.

"Public preschool programs can potentially compensate for the home environments of disadvantaged children," Heckman said. "No public preschool program can provide the environments and the parental love and care of a functioning family and the lifetime benefits that ensue."

All of this would suggest taking a cautious approach focused on the least-advantaged kids rather than moving fullspeed ahead on a massive federal expenditure to get as many kids into daycare and pre-K as possible, probably through the existing structure of public schools.

But, in a desperate rush to spend another $4 trillion, Joe Biden wants his New Deal for kids -- whether it's good for them or not.

Yes, the Pfizer COVID-19 vaccine is now available for adolescents aged 12-15 years. Clinical trials have shown this vaccine to be safe and effective against the COVID-19 virus.

Why should you get your adolescent vaccinated?

By getting your child vaccinated:

- · You'll protect them from COVID-19.
- · You'll make schools safer for everybody.
- You'll help stop the spread! While adolescents are less likely to have serious illness than adults, they can spread the virus.
- Those who are fully vaccinated do not have to quarantine if they are exposed to someone with COVID-19, so that means no missing school, sporting events or other social activities due to an exposure.

Seat belts are essential to safety

RICHMOND – While many Virginians are getting vaccinated and making spring and summer travel plans, the Virginia Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV), through its "Click It or Ticket!" campaign, reminds those who will be traveling that the best way to ensure you and your loved ones arrive at your destination safely is to always wear a seat belt.

While statistics show the lifesaving value of seat belts, approximately 15% of Virginians still do not buckle up. Held nationally in May, the "Click It or Ticket!" campaign combines outreach, education and enforcement to promote proper seat belt and child safety seat use.

Despite fewer cars on the road, Virginia continues to see an increase in unbelted fatalities on the Commonwealth's roadways. Approximately 13% more people who weren't wearing their seat belts have been killed in crashes in 2020, compared to 2019 (343 compared to 304).

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), seat belts save more than 11,000 lives in the United States each year. In 2017 alone, the NHTSA reported that seat belt use in passenger vehicles saved an estimated 14,955 lives.

This year's "Click It or Ticket!" campaign in Virginia focuses on being remembered for the positives in life and not that you weren't wearing a seat belt.

"Not only is wearing a seat belt the law, but it is also a simple act of kindness for yourself and those who love you," said DMV Commissioner Richard D. Holcomb, the Governor's Highway Safety Representative. "We want all Virginians to be protected on the Commonwealth's roadways and, time and time again, buckling up has been proven to reduce injuries and save lives if a crash occurs."

We were planning on a long trip last week to take in some fishing, but the gas crisis hit and we concluded that we might get stranded and not get back home for a while. I thought I would share some facts this week about fish and if they sleep or even close their eyes as most all fish can be caught 24/7. After doing some research, I am going to share some of the sleeping habits of fish and other animal species First and foremost, all animals sleep; not as the same that we as humans think of as 7 or more hours is the norm. A few weeks ago, I touched on how the albatross that stays aloft for long periods of time and can nap for as little as 10 seconds. Fish can sleep with their eyes open as most species do not have eye lids to close. Most sharks have eye lids and some species of fish have see-through transparent coverings that act as googles. Eye lids help moisten the eyes and water serves the same purpose. They don't need them underwater because dust cannot get in their eyes. The same can be said about snakes as I have often heard that they do not have eye lids. They have a protective scale covering that is called a "brille" to protect them from dust and dirt.

Fish live in water and have to stay awake to swim and breathe. They do this by using what is known as "unihemispheric slowwave sleep" (USWS). By this process, one half the brain rests while the other half is awake and Bears are known for their unusual sleep habits and being able to cope with the lean months of winter when their food sources are not readily available. They build up their fat reserves by eating an over abundance of food in the summer and fall. We think of it as the bears' sleep as a hibernation state but is actually a process called, "torpor" where they can use a light-type sleep and awaken quickly if danger approaches. Some bears may not hibernate at all in mild weather and there is food to be found.

Cattle lie down to sleep while horses sleep standing up and seldom lie down. The giraffe also sleeps standing up and may have one eye open and their ears are alert to approaching danger. Many animals of the wild (creatures of the water and most birds as well) have this ability to sleep and be able to see and hear while in a deep sleep. I feel these all these attributes of animals point to a Divine Creator.

The people of the evolutionist crowd dismiss that Creation took place as the Bible states in Genesis 1:1KJV, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." All of the total creation took place in six literal days and God rested on the seventh and said it was good. After sin entered the world, God had to destroy the world using a universal flood and the eight members of Noah's family were the only humans saved along with animals to repopulate the new earth. There are those that contend that Noah and his family could have not fed and carried for all the animals aboard the ark. I told a person once, "If a bear could have hibernated on the ark, God could have put all the rest of them to sleep as well.'

hearing ear, and the seeing eye, the Lord hath made even both of them." As Dr. Henry Morris, former head of the Civil Engr. Dept. at VA Tech and founder of Institute for Creation Research states in his Defender's Bible, "It is nonsense to think that such marvelously complex systems as eyes and ears could ever evolve by chance. The Lord alone is Maker!"

Proverbs 20:12 states, "The

Titans' top pick, Farley rehabbing, learning playbook

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Top draft pick Caleb Farley is busy learning the Tennessee defensive playbook, then he heads off to rehabilitation as he recovers from surgery while his rookie teammates hit the practice field.

Patience is the order not only of the day but the weeks until training camp for the No. 22 pick overall and the Titans.

"I'm dying to get back on the football field," Farley said Saturday. "And yeah, so that's why I'm just waking up every day and putting everything I have to invest and getting back healthy."

Farley might have been a top-10 selection and the first cornerback drafted if not for having a second surgery in March to repair a disk doctors originally hoped would heal after surgery following his 2019 season at Virginia Tech to repair an adjacent disk.

The Titans gambled Farley will recover once and for all from the latest surgery, needing a top cornerback after they cut three starters in the secondary due to the salary cap in Malcolm Butler, Adoree Jackson and safety Kenny Vaccaro.

But they spent five of eight draft picks on defense to fix a unit that was among the NFL's worst last season and avoid being a drag on an offense led by All Pro and AP NFL Offensive Player of the Year Derrick Henry and quarterback Ryan Tannehill.

Titans coach Mike Vrabel said Farley's doing everything asked

"He's studying, he's been conscientious, he's answered the questions that I've had for him on our team meeting as it relates his assignments," Vrabel said.

The 6-foot-2, 197-pound Farley said he's excited to be playing football again and learning the playbook. The cornerback opted out of the 2020 season, choosing not to risk his family with his mother dying in January 2018.

Farley asked for the playbook right after he was drafted and got a copy the next day.

"It was kind of comical when Coach handed it to me and ... he said, 'You asked for it. Here it is," Farley said.

Farley likes what he sees in the Titans' defensive schemes.

"I feel like it fits my skill set well," Farley said. "I think that's why they picked me because a scheme that I could fit in, and I'm just extremely excited to have this opportunity to bond with my teammates and feel like a freshman in college all over again."

At least the Titans are holding a three-day rookie minicamp, even if their numbers are limited. The coronavirus pandemic wiped out last year's entire offseason program, and that certainly didn't help top draft pick Isaiah Wilson who Tennessee traded to Miami in March before he was cut a few days later.

Fellow cornerback Elijah Molden, the No. 100 pick overall, came out late Saturday in the one session open to reporters. Vrabel said

God Is Always With Us

When God directs us to do a work for Him, we never go out alone, because God is with us.

Lets look at some scripture that guarantees us that when God calls us to do a job for Him, He doesn't send us out alone. No. He goes with us and gives us supernatural power to do the job wherein He God tells us in Isaiah 42:3,

"When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee. For I am the LORD thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour:"

The bible says of Jesus, that His name shall be called Immanuel, which means, "God with us." There's no where in the universe that we can go that God is not with us. Psalm 129: 7-12 spells it out for us. God's word assures us that no matter where we might find ourselves, God's presence is

It says, "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence?

If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there.

If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea;

Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold

If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me.

Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: the darkness and the light are both alike to thee."

Psalm 9: 1-11. "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust.

Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence.

He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: his truth shall be thy shield and buckler.

Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day;

Nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday.

A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh

Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold and see the reward of the

Because thou hast made the Lord, which is my refuge, even the most High, thy habitation;

There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling.

For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways."

Joshua 1:9 says. "Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest."

Many times in the bible God has said, I will never leave thee. I will never forsake thee. And God has never broken not even one of

You're in good shape either way

Dear Dave,

I can't decide whether to sell or keep a rental property. Except for the property in question I'm debt-free, and I make $90,000 a year. I owe $20,000 on the property, and it is worth $65,000. What do you think?

George

Dear George,

You're in pretty good shape financially, and you could probably pay off the rental property in a year or two. So really, it's a matter of personal preference. I will say this; there's nothing worse than being a landlord if you don't want to be one.

It's not a bad thing to feel that way. Some folks have fun and enjoy landlording for a while, but then other things become more important. It's your life and your feelings that matter at this point.

If you still enjoy dabbling in real estate and being a landlord, go for it. If the shine has worn off, get rid of the place. If the latter is the case, you'll get the responsibility of being a landlord off your back and become debtfree all at the same time!

Dear Dave,

I've been following your advice for about a year. I'm almost out of debt, and I live on a budget, but looking toward the future it seems like it will be very difficult to save up for a down payment on a home. I live in Chicago, and property prices are very expensive. I have a friend in Georgia who suggested I buy a less expensive property there, then fix it up and flip it to make the money I would need for a down payment. What do you think of this idea?

Dear Erik,

When you take on the kind of work you're talking about, you need to oversee what's happening every step of the way. You're working out details, keeping an eye on the crew, and having to handle a dozen other issues tied to the project. Plus, you can't just walk up to a house or see it online, buy it, and expect to come out ahead in the deal.

People who flip houses for a living professionally eyeball dozens, sometimes hundreds, of properties to buy just one. It's not an easy way to make money, and it's definitely not something I'd recommend doing from a distance. In short, I wouldn't do it, Erik. Fixing and flipping properties is a hands-on business, and trying to do it from 700 miles away would be a nightmare.

Just keep on working the budget and save as much as you can. I'd consider getting a part-time job for a while to add to the down payment fund before I'd try to fix and flip a house that far away.
