Minimum wage set to increase to $11 on Jan. 1

By TYLER ARNOLD

ia's minimum wage will increase workers later in the year. to $11 per hour in less than a week, which is getting some mixed reactions from members of the commonwealth's business community.

On Jan. 1, the minimum wage will increase by $1.50 per hour, going up from $9.50 to $11. This is the second phase in the state's incremental minimum wage increase. In May of 2021, the minimum wage went up from $7.75 to

Although this will put more of a burden on businesses, many have already been forced to increase wages in recent months because of a pressing labor shortage, according to Nicole Riley, the Virginia director for the National Federation of Independent

Riley told The Center Square that most businesses are already paying their employees more than $11 per hour to incentivize potential workers. However, she said the higher minimum wage could negatively impact certain businesses who would normally (The Center Square) - Virgin- hire younger and inexperienced

Any time labor costs increase. there will be a trickle down effect, Riley said. To absorb costs, a business might spread work out among current staff, rather than hire another worker, she added. In some cases, a business could pass the costs down to the consumer through higher prices, but she said the high inflation rates could make that difficult to sustain and result in losing customers.

One organization called Business for a Fair Minimum Wage is embracing the higher wage. The group's CEO, Holly Sklar, released a statement in which she said low minimum wages hurt workers who can't afford basics and hurt businesses that count on people having money to spend. Michael Lastoria, the CEO of &pizza and member of the group, said higher wages show workers they are valued.

Griffith announces bid for re-election

Salem - Congressman Morgan Griffith has declared his intention to seek re-election to Virginia's Ninth Congressional District.

"I have called Southwest Virginia home my entire life, and I have worked tirelessly for the communities I represent. I am so fortunate to be currently representing some of the state's most friendly, loving, and patriotic Americans. Despite the tremendous size of the Ninth Congressional district, I have been amazed by the overwhelming support I have received as I travel throughout the regions. This support has made my job as your U.S. Representative special," said the Salem Republican.

"Unfortunately, the last year under the Biden administration has been anything but ideal for my constituents. We are seeing an unprecedented assault on our civil liberties, families are struggling to make ends meet as gas prices and grocery prices rise, and drug abuse continues to be a major problem in our communi-

assenger Rail Station study launched

The Virginia Passenger Rail Authority (VPRA) would like to announce the launch of the New River Valley Passenger Rail Station Feasibility Study, which is a study of potential passenger rail station locations in and around the New River Valley. The following information provides a brief highlight of activities todate that have led to the New River Valley Passenger Rail Station Feasbilibilty Study:

•On May 5, 2021, the Governor of Virginia announced that the Commonwealth had reached an agreement with Norfolk Southern to extend passenger rail service along the former Virginian line from Roanoke to the New River Valley for the first time since 1979.

• The Governor's announcement outlined Virginia's intent to:

o Purchase 28.5 miles of rightof-way and tracks along the former Virginian Line from the Salem Crossovers west of Roanoke to Merrimac (Christiansburg) from Norfolk Southern.

o Increase and extend passenger rail service from Roanoke to the New River Valley through infrastructure improvements along the existing rail line and move forward a new passenger station.

• In Fall 2021, VPRA began a feasibility study to examine five potential station locations in and around the New River Valley.

o The station locations are along existing Norfolk Southern railroad corridors that are currently operated for freight trains

"As such, I feel the need to continue my fight in Congress to make sure our region is heard and ensure traditionally conservative values ultimately prevail. There is still much work to be done in Congress. Accordingly, I announce my candidacy for re-election to represent the Ninth Congressional District."

Griffith was first elected to represent the Ninth Congressional District of Virginia in the U.S. House of Representatives on November 2, 2010 when he upset longtime representative Rick Boucher.

In his sixth term, Griffith is a member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, which has jurisdiction over some of the most important issues facing Virginia's Ninth District including public health and federal regulations.

For the 117th Congress, he was

Energy and Commerce Committee's Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations. He is a member of the Subcommittee on Health and the Subcommittee on Energy.

Prior to his election to the U.S. House of Representatives, Griffith served as a member of the Virginia House of Delegates from 1994 to 2011, where he represented the Eighth District. In 2000, Morgan was elected House Majority Leader, the first Republican in Virginia history to hold that position.

He is a graduate of Salem's Andrew Lewis High School and an honors graduate of Emory & Henry College. After completing studies at the Washington and Lee University School of Law, Griffith returned to Southwest Virginia where he practiced law for nearly three decades.

He is married to Hilary, and named Republican Leader of the together they have three children.

o The New River Valley Passenger Rail Station Feasibility Study reflects on previous work conducted for the New River Valley Passenger Rail Station locations in the region, while examining what station location opportunities are possible following the Governor's May 2021 announcement.

"The increase to $11 has been scheduled for more than a year, so businesses should have it baked in," Haner said. "If it means fewer people, they've done it already. Economic events have basically overtaken it and plenty of employers are already there or have gone higher. We are now in the 'dog chasing its tail' phase, where wages and prices just rise in lockstep.'

An incremental increase in minimum wage was passed by the General Assembly and signed by Gov. Ralph Northam last year. After it increases to $11 this weekend, it is set to go up to $12 on Jan. 1 of the following year,

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: are some things you can try: During the pandemic, my cat "Rusty" would jump into my lap or roam across my keyboard during Zoom meetings with the rest of my team. Everyone thought it was funny. Last month I was hired to work remotely for a new company. My supervisor told me the cat cannot appear on screen. If I put Rusty into the bathroom during video calls (I have a studio apartment), he yowls loudly until I let him out. What can I do? I need to keep this job. -- Jake V., Alexandria, Virginia

DEAR JAKE: Pets can be a lot of fun to introduce in casual business meetings, but they can't always be present, especially if your boss has forbidden it. Here

- -- Create a "go to work" routine. We tend to follow the same format every morning (wake up, drink coffee, get dressed, sit at our computer), so add two things to the routine: attention time with Rusty, and leaving for work. Give Rusty 10-15 minutes of undivided attention somewhere between coffee and getting dressed. Once you're dressed, say "I'm going to work!" loudly, and ignore Rusty for several minutes.
- -- Make Rusty more comfortable when separated from you. Put his favorite cat bed, toys and drinking water into the bathroom
- when he's sequestered. Teach "go away" signals. Make a hissing noise or snap your fingers when Rusty tries to jump

In an order, the court said it had reviewed final redistricting maps — which were put together by two court appointees called special masters — as well as extensive public comment on earlier draft maps.

The special masters fully complied with state and federal law in creating the maps, the court said. The final maps are approved and adopted, effective immediately, according to the court order.

Trende and Grofman wrote in their memo that the maps reflect "a true joint effort."

They said they agreed on almost all issues initially, "and the few issues on which we initially disagreed were resolved by amicable discussion."

The American Trucking Association estimated that by the end of 2021 there will be a shortage of over 80,000 workers, and it will double by 2030. The exact shortage in Virginia is unclear, according to Bennett.

"That is the highest that it's ever been," Bennett said. "The driver shortage may be as bad as I have seen it in my time here."

In an October report to Congress, the American Trucking Association, or ATA, laid out eight primary reasons for the industry shortage:

- High retirement numbers due to an aging workforce.
- Women account for just over
- 6% of the workforce. • Failed drug tests.
- Federally mandated minimum age of 21 to drive commercially across state lines.
- Lifestyle issues, such as long hours away from home.
- Barriers such as potential candidates inability to meet hiring standards for driving record or criminal histories.
- Truck driver training schools trained far fewer drivers than normal in 2020.
- Infrastructure and other issues, like a lack of truck parking spots causing drivers to stop earlier to rest for the night. Congestion also limits drivers' ability to safely and efficiently make deliveries.

Refueling the pipeline of workers

The industry will have to recruit nearly 1 million new drivers over the next decade to replace drivers and hire needed ones due to industry growth, the ATA fore-

The trucking industry hauls over 70% of U.S. freight, according to the ATA. Consumer demand is high and 42% of Americans say they plan to spend $500 more this holiday season than last, according to the quarterly MassMutual Holiday Finances Consumer Spending and Saving Quarterly Index.

The number of heavy, or CDL-licensed, tractor-trailer Sons - James "Jay" Martin & drivers decreased from 43,620 in May 2019 to 42,120 in May 2020 gram that would enable drivers (down 3.4%) while the number of light truck drivers increased from 20,970 to 21,850 during that same time period (up 4.2%), according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Pickup and delivery drivers fall into the light truck driver catego-

Bennett warned that Virginia ers home during the start of the is short of the amount of heavy truck drivers needed to meet demand from consumers.

We've got a demographic problem in the industry," Bennett said. "The average age is older than the general workforce and a lot of those folks are retiring."

Under federal law, a driver has to be at least 21 to drive outside of the state where they hold a commercial driver's license. Large trucking companies in Virginia like Old Dominion Freight Line have routes reaching from Anchorage, Alaska to Miami. The inability to travel over state lines makes drivers under 21 less valu-

"A 19 year old can drive a tractor trailer from Norfolk, Virginia all the way to Bristol, Virginia," Bennett said. "But once he gets to Bristol he cannot drive that tractor trailer over state lines into Bristol, Tennessee."

Congress passed the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act on Nov. 5, which includes provisions for an apprenticeship pilot prounder 21 to drive interstate after passing the program.

The bill, sponsored by U.S. Rep. Peter DeFazio, D-Oregon, will invest $110 billion into roads, bridges and projects.

Other issues driving the labor shortage

COVID-19 vaccine requirements could affect the labor force also. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration issued an emergency temporary standard on Nov. 4 which requires covered employers

Happy New Year!

Biden at the Bat

In the summer of 1888, a 24-year-old American writer named Ernest Thayer published the humerous poem, Casey at the Bat. The poem is about a highly esteemed baseball hero who strikes out, leading to the home team's chagrin; and in disgrace, loses the series for his

Although this fictitious poem was never meant to be a political statement, I think it aptly applies to our current administration. If my analogy offends baseball fans or politicians, please forgive me...and play on!

The poem begins:

"The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Mudville nine that day;

the score stood four to two, with but one inning more to play.

And then when Cooney died at first, and Barrows did the same,

a sickly silence fell upon the patrons of the game."

If you substitute a few key words, then this part of the poem would read:

The outlook was gloomy for the D.C. establishment that day.

One Nation Under God

The score stood at forty-eight minus two holdout Democrats, (Manchin and Sinema) who refused to play. (Thus, delaying passing of left-wing legislation before recess.)

When the Build Back Better bill and Student Debt Cancellation failed to a jarring shock and hopeless dispair fell upon the liberal Democrats.

Next stanza: "A straggling few got up to go in deep despair. The rest clung to that hope which springs eternal in the human breast;

they thought, if only Casey could get but a whack at that -

Testing, Testing

By Cal Thomas, Tribune Content Agency

President Biden has attempted to tamp down the frustration many feel over his inability to crush the pandemic, as he promised he would do when campaigning for the office he now holds.

In a Tuesday afternoon addressfrom the White House, the president promised to ramp up testing sites and the number of "free" tests that will be made available to those who want them. He said a website will soon be established through which people can request test kits to be sent to their homes. And it's all "free," he repeated. He sounded like those Medicare supplement adds that just ended after open enrollment season closed.

I have several questions about these kits, which the president said would number 500 million. First, what happens when they run out? The at-home kits I have seen contain a limited number of swabs. When they are used, do you order more and for how long? Will the government pay for these, too? If so, will it continue to pay for them and for how long? Taxpayers have a right to know, given the deepening debt.

Second, because the tests are self-administered will the results be accepted by airlines for international travel? Airport testing sites I have seen in recent weeks charge up to $179 for a rapid test. On a trip to Italy in October, my wife and I were charged $150 each for a rapid test at O'Hare Airport in Chicago. They were the most expensive Q-Tips we have ever purchased. Tents and vans have popped up, especially in major cities. They, too, often charge a lot of money. On a recent visit to a shopping mall, I saw a van in the parking lot that offered drive-thru testing for $150 a pop. Talk about price gouging. Will these be put out of business because tests will now be almost universally free?

Two things the president was right about.

In a rare moment, he gave credit to "the previous administration," meaning former President Trump, for its rapid development of a vaccine. The other was his denunciation of misinformation promoted on some cable TV channels and on social media. I am still seeing claims that vaccines are part of a "one world government" plot and a conspiracy between politicians and Big Pharma to make gobs of money and erode our freedoms. This is reminiscent of other conspiracy theories through the ages. As noted, a virus doesn't discriminate when it comes to parties, politics, or countries. The president made a compelling argument when he said his urging to get vaccinated and boosted "is not to control your life, but to save it."

There is a better way to approach this than to make test kits available to everyone, because not everyone needs or wants them. As with the initial rollout of vaccines, make the kits available first to the most vulnerable. Their names are on a list. That list is called Medicare. Allow older people and those with underlying health conditions to go to the head of the line.

By acknowledging that people are "tired" of this virus, its variants, masks, and other limitations on our freedoms, at least the president was trying to tap into the emotions most people are feeling. That's what a good politician should do. There is still too much contradictory information coming from too many sources and too many Americans remain skeptical and not sure whom they can trust. This is a hurdle the president has yet to clear, and it may turn out that not even presidential powers are sufficient for him to do so.

High-Water Mark of Biden-Era Progressivism

Joe Manchin and London Breed have nothing in common.

One is an old-school Democratic senator from West Virginia, surviving and thriving in an increasingly red state; the other is the progressive mayor of San Francisco, a city that is a byword for cutting-edge leftwing politics.

Yet both, in their own ways signaled that Biden-era progressivism has reached its high-water mark. Manchin, of course, delivered an emphatic thumbs down to Joe Biden's signature Build Back Better plan, while Breed reversed field on crime in a stunningly frank endorsement of law-and-order in a jurisdiction infamous for the opposite.

The de facto pincer movement by the wildly different Democrats from wildly different parts of the country -- San Francisco is roughly 19 times as large as the biggest city in West Virginia -- shows that the progressive tide that built in the Trump years is finally colliding with political reality and the real-world consequences of progressive extravagance.

This doesn't mean that progressivism is spent obviously. It dominates the media, academia and almost all the rest of elite culture. At the same time, Democrats still control the elected branches of government in Washington. But a growing backlash against progressive excess has found expression in two notable acts of Democratic

By now, the context of Manchin's "no" on Build Back Better is familiar. Joe Biden campaigned as a pragmatic Democrat only to reverse field after his election and develop a heroic image of himself as the next transformational Democratic president in the line of FDR and LBJ.

This drove the mistake of not realizing that Manchin or any other Democratic dissenter in the 50-50 Senate had the power to derail Build Back Better and accordingly scaling it back from the outset. Instead, the White House and congressional leadership acted as if Manchin could be cajoled or bullied out of his oft-repeated qualms.

Perhaps Democrats will reunite with the senator on a scaled-back spending bill in the new year, but the era of FDR fantasies is definitely over. Democrats should ask themselves, if they had a mandate to remake the country, why the entire project depended on the approval of a single conservative Democrat from West Virginia?

Now, Democrats are looking down the barrel of a mid-term election wipe-out that could give the GOP a durable House majority that will put paid to any thought of BBB-style legislation for years.

If Manchin said "enough" to big-spending federal aggrandizement, London Breed said it to the soft-on-crime consensus in blue cities that has led to spiraling disorder. The Bay Area, home to the smash-andgrab robbery and other routine offenses against basic human decency, has been Exhibit A. Concluding that even the tolerant people of perhaps the country's most tolerant city wouldn't put up with it much longer, Breed had her Howard Beale moment. In a speech clearly meant to set down a political and rhetorical marker, she called for an end to "the reign of criminals who are destroying our city."

The Breed turnabout, from police-defunder a year ago to would-be Rudy Giuliani now, marks an end to the period after George Floyd's death when anti-police sentiment was ascen-

There are other signs that the progressive momentum is beginning to give way. A rightward shift among Latinos shows the limits of paint-by-the-numbers identity politics. That the left's response to the grassroots movement against critical race theory in schools has been to deny there is any critical race theory in schools speaks to a telling defensiveness. Next year, the Supreme Court may well knock out Roe and Casey, cornerstones of the progressive social agenda. Of course, the political and cultural war will continue apace. Still, December 2021 looks like an inflection point when, as Breed put it in her speech, "the bullt" finally got a reality check.

The pandemic also caused temporary shutdowns of driver training schools and the Department of Motor Vehicles, which made addressing the urgent labor shortage

Duncan Quicke, coordinator of the truck driving training school at Southside Virginia Community College in Brunswick County, said the school closed for three months at the start of the pandemic. Demand for CDL classes is now at an all time high, but it's more difficult to schedule appointments at DMV, Quicke said.

"Our classes prior to COVID were probably averaging seven to eight individuals per six-week period," Quicke said. "Our class size today is probably averaging 10 to 11."

Weak links in the supply chain

Truck companies are also feeling the impact of the supply chain issue. Companies have trouble ordering new trucks or parts to fix their fleets, Bennett said. A global microchip shortage has driven up the value of new and used cars. People are buying auto parts to keep their old vehicles running, which creates an extreme demand for parts.

cannibalizing are parts off of older vehicles just to keep them running and moving freight," Bennett said.

The Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act includes a 38% increase in funding for bridges and roads. The Virginia Department of Transportation will manage the funds but a portion of funding is expected to be allocated to growing the Norfolk Harbor, according to a press release from Rep. Abigail Spanberger, D-7th.

Long delays at ports have made getting freight delivered on time a challenge for carriers.

"It's called a chain for a lot of reasons, because it's got a lot of links in it," Bennett said. "Not all of those links are operating as efficiently as they need to be."

Madden, Hall of Fame coach, broadcaster, dies at 85

AP Pro Football Writer

John Madden, the Hall of Fame coach turned broadcaster whose exuberant calls combined with simple explanations provided a weekly soundtrack to NFL games for three decades, died Tuesday morning, the league said. He was 85.

The NFL said he died unexpectedly and did not detail a

Madden gained fame in a decade-long stint as the coach of the renegade Oakland Raiders, making it to seven AFC title games and winning the Super Bowl following the 1976 season. He compiled a 103-32-7 regular-season record, and his .759

But it was his work after prematurely retiring as coach at age 42 that made Madden truly a household name. He educated a football nation with his use of the telestrator on broadcasts; entertained millions with his interjections of "Boom!" and "Doink!" throughout games; was an omnipresent pitchman selling restaurants, hardware stores and beer; became the face of "Madden NFL Football," one of the most successful sports video games of all-time; and was a best-selling author.

Most of all, he was the preeminent television sports analyst for most of his three decades calling games, winning an unprecedented 16 Emmy Awards for outstanding sports analyst/personality, among NFL coaches with more four networks from 1979-2009.

Angel's two-way star tapped as 2021's

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) Most of the time in professional sports, it's easy to think it's all been done before.

top athlete

With so many finetuned athletes constantly pushing each other to the peak of human potential, we can experience unprecedented demonstrations of sporting brilliance every week of our lives. But it's truly rare to witness anything that isn't fundamentally just a better, more prolific version of something we've already seen.

That's why Shohei Ohtani's astonishing redefinition of modern baseball captured the world's attention so vividly in 2021 and that's why the Los Angeles Angels' two-way superstar is the winner of The Associated Press' Male Athlete of the Year award.

The unanimous American League MVP put together a season with no analogue in the past century of his sport. Almost no one had been an everyday twoway player for many decades and nobody has been both one of baseball's top power hitters and one of its best starting pitchers since Babe Ruth starred at the plate and on the mound for the Boston Red Sox in 1919.

haven't seen in our lifetimes, but he's also doing it at the very highest level of hitting and pitching," Angels manager Joe Maddon said late in the regular season. "He's doing more than other players, but he's also doing it better than almost everybody else on that field, and those are the greatest players in the game, his contemporaries. He's playing their game, but he's also playing a different game."

"He's doing something

Ohtani hit 46 homers and drove in 100 runs with a .965 OPS while playing in 126 games as the AL's best designated hitter, as evidenced by his Silver Slugger award. He finished third in the majors in homers after leading the sport for much of the season.

Ohtani also started 23 games on the mound, going 9-2 with a 3.18 ERA and 156 strikeouts over 130 1/3 innings as the Angels' ace and one of the AL's top right-handers. He has a 100-mph fastball, but his splitter might be the best pitch in baseball, with movement that resembles a ball rolling off the edge of a table.

The 6-foot-4 star also was among the fastest baserunners in the majors while stealing 26 bases and scoring 103 runs. He even led the league with eight triples - and he also played a little outfield when asked.

Any one of these achievements would be impressive for a 27-year-old hitting his prime in his fourth season since moving from Japan to the major leagues.

Doing it all at the same time is something that almost nobody who's currently alive had ever hundreds of topics. The term 'Renaissance Man' is tossed around a little too loosely these days, but John was as close as you can come," Michaels said.

For anyone who heard Madden exclaim "Boom!" while breaking down a play, his love of the game was obvious.

"For me, TV is really an extension of coaching," Madden wrote in "Hey, Wait a Minute! (I Wrote a Book!)."

"My knowledge of football has come from coaching. And on TV, all I'm trying to do is pass on some of that knowledge to view-

Madden was raised in Daly City, California. He played on both the offensive and defensive lines for Cal Poly in 1957-58 and earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from the school.

Madden was chosen to the all-conference team and was drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles, but a knee injury ended his hopes of a pro playing career. Instead, Madden got into coaching, and then as defensive coordinator at San Diego State.

Al Davis brought him to the Raiders as a linebackers coach in 1967, and Oakland went to the Super Bowl in his first year in the pros. He replaced John Rauch as head coach after the 1968 season at age 32, beginning a remarkable 10-year run.

With his demonstrative demeanor on the sideline and disheveled look, Madden was the ideal coach for the collection of castoffs and misfits that made up those Raiders teams.

'Sometimes guys were disciplinarians in things that didn't make any difference. I was a disciplinarian in jumping offsides; I hated that," Madden once said. "Being in bad position and missing tackles, those things. I wasn't, 'Your hair has to be combed."

The Raiders responded.

"I always thought his strong suit was his style of coaching," quarterback Ken Stabler once said. "John just had a great knack for letting us be what we wanted first at Hancock Junior College to be, on the field and off the field. ... How do you repay him for being that way? You win for him."

And boy, did they ever. Many years, the only problem was the playoffs.

Madden went 12-1-1 in his first season, losing the AFL title game 17-7 to Kansas City. That pattern repeated itself during his tenure; the Raiders won the division title in seven of his first eight seasons, but went 1-6 in conference title games during that span.

Still, Madden's Raiders played in some of the sport's most memorable games of the 1970s, games that helped change rules in the NFL. There was the "Holy Roller" in 1978, when Stabler purposely fumbled forward before being sacked on the final play. The ball rolled and was batted to the end zone before Dave Casper recovered it for the winning touchdown against San Diego.

games went against the Raiders in the 1972 playoffs at Pittsburgh. With the Raiders leading 7-6 and 22 seconds left, the Steelers had a fourth-and-10 from their 40. Terry Bradshaw's desperation pass deflected off either Oakland's Jack Tatum or Pittsburgh's Frenchy Fuqua to Franco Harris, who caught it at his shoe tops and ran in for a TD.

In those days, a pass that bounced off an offensive player directly to a teammate was illegal, and the debate continues to this day over which player it hit. The catch, of course, was dubbed the "Immaculate Reception."

Oakland finally broke through with a loaded team in 1976 that had Stabler at quarterback; Fred Biletnikoff and Cliff Branch at receiver; tight end Dave Casper; Hall of Fame offensive linemen Gene Upshaw and Art Shell: and a defense that included Willie Brown, Ted Hendricks, Tatum, John Matuszak, Otis Sistrunk and George Atkinson.

The Raiders went 13-1, losing The most famous of those only a blowout at New England in Week 4. They paid the Patriots back with a 24-21 win in their first playoff game and got over the AFC title game hump with a 24-7 win over the hated Steelers, who were crippled by injuries.

Oakland won it all with a 32-14 Super Bowl romp against Minne-

"Players loved playing for him," Shell said. "He made it fun for us in camp and fun for us in the regular season. All he asked is that we be on time and play like hell when it was time to play."

Madden battled an ulcer the following season, when the Raiders once again lost in the AFC title game. He retired from coaching at age 42 after a 9-7 season in 1978.

Madden was a longtime resident of Pleasanton, California, a Bay Area suburb. A 90-minute documentary on his coaching and broadcasting career, "All Madden," debuted on Fox on Christmas Day. The film featured extensive interviews that Madden sat for this year. His wife, Virginia, and sons Joseph and Michael were also interviewed for the documentary.

John and Virginia Madden's 62nd wedding anniversary was two days before his death.

A Good Trapping Tree

I touched on trapping last week when growing up on Little Creek. Just like hunting and fishing where you may get a trophy buck or some big fish, there are spots that are better at getting good yields in pelts of fur-bearing animals. There was such a place near my home that was about a mile section of the "Creek" that our gang of three to four took in as our place to make a few dollars in the long winter months. This was possible then before animal rights groups and others objected to the wearing clothes made from animal skins. You can see old rerun movies today, especially gangster ones, where classy women could be seen having several fox skins draped about their shoulders or full-length coats made from a number of mink pelts.

Back then, one could get a few dollars from trapping animals that were found along Little Creek. Most farmers raised corn back then and there were a number of muskrats that thrived on this up until it was harvested and fed to the cattle and other livestock. We caught several muskrats along the water by sticking a part of an ear of corn on a stick at the water's edge with the trap set under it where the animal was caught and drowned as the trap was anchored to a stake out in the water. We even caught racoons the same way as they often came from the woodland to the water looking for fish and crawdads. Opossums were relatively easy to catch but brought only about two bits and were not worth the time in skinning. Muskrats brought two to three dollars and were well worth the time catching and skinning them.

Foxes and minks brought the most money, but were two of the most difficult animals to catch. We made a few sets in the woods for foxes, but trapped mostly for minks along the "Creek." There was a large black oak that stood leaning over and near the water's edge that we caught several muskrats. Bob & Joe, my two buddies, shared the money we got for we had gone in together and purchased some traps from Sears, Roebuck & Co. You could, at that time, sell your hides to them but we never had enough at any one time, (say 20 to 30) to justify this and instead sold them at an old country store and post office at Poplar Hill in nearby Giles County. I had obtained a pamphlet from Sears, Roebuck giving trapping tips.

One of the ways of catching minks was to set traps in their repeated routes of travel; one being they liked to go through narrow places and this was how just enough room to place a trap between the tree and water. Bob had caught a large mink in his trap and his brother, Ed, and I found it when checking the trap line one morning. He gave us equal shares of the money for the mink and we shared the same on several muskrats we sold them. We made several dollars trapping together for a couple of years. I continued to trap by self and caught a few minks, muskrats, racoons etc. after Bob and Ed moved away. Today, there is little to made from trapping and some animals such as minks are ranchraised individuals supplying the commercial market.

Comparing the oak tree and the narrow passage to the Bible and the direction of what is recommended for life's journey, Matthew 7:13-14 KJV states, "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in there at: Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." For those traveling the broad way, there could not be a better way to start the New Year way than to get on the Good Lord's side that leads to eternal life.

Until next time

Evangelist?

Philip the Evangelist was one of the seven men chosen to attend certain temporal affairs in the Church at Jerusalem. Serving tables and overseeing the financial assistance and distribution of food from the Church to poor and needy widows.

Philip is called an Evangelist in the Bible. Acts 21: 8. "And the next day we that were of Paul's company departed, and came unto Caesarea: and we entered into the house of Philip the Evangelist, which was one of the seven; and abode with him."

He had four daughters who prophesied. He raised his daughters to love and serve God. He preached to the Ethiopian Eunuch about God's great plan of salvation through Jesus, baptized him in water, and then sent him on his way back to Ethiopia to where tradition says, this Eunuch established the first Christian Church in Ethiopia.

We know he was carried away in the Spirit of God at least once although we don't know for sure just exactly how it happened. Some believe he was literally picked up by the Holy Spirit and set back down in another place and some believe he was simply led by the Holy Ghost to another We know for sure that he was an Evangelist. An Evangelist is someone who travels around from place to place seeking to convert others to Christ through the preaching of God's word. The office of Evangelist is one of the fivefold ministry gifts given by God to the Church. These fivefold ministry gifts are Apostles, Prophets, Evangelists, Pastors and Teachers. Ephesians 4:11.

Acts 8: 4. "Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word. Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them. And the people with one accord gave heed unto these things which Philip spake. For unclean spirits, crying with loud voices, came out of many that were possessed with them: and many taken with palsies, and that were lame, were healed. And there was great joy in that city."

Verses 9 through 13. "But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the Name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, Acts 8:26.

"And the angel of the Lord spake unto Philip saying, arise, and go toward the South unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is desert. And he arose and went: and, behold a man of Ethiopia, a Eunuch of great authority under Candace, Queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treasure, and had come to Jerusalem for to worship. Afterwards returning, he was sitting in his chariot, reading Esaias (Isaiah) the Prophet.'

Philip the Evangelist was in the middle of a great revival. Some may wonder why God would take a man out of a great revival that he was preaching where many were being saved and healed, and send him to witness to one man. Because every soul is important to God.

Philip had evangelized the city of Samaria. Now God wanted Philip to go and evangelize a whole country. And he did that by winning the Ethiopian Eunuch to Christ. Tradition has it that when this saved, baptized, Ethiopian Eunuch returned to his own country of Ethiopia, he started the first Christian Church in the country of Ethiopia, and Jesus was introduced to a whole other Nation.

The Bible is our guide book Bible become central in life--not

From the writings of the Rev. Billy Graham

Q: Sometimes I feel that nothing I do turns out right even when I go the extra mile. I pray and ask God to help me see things differently but I stay discouraged. Since God promises to be with us, why do I feel defeated? - D.S.

A: Discouragement, hopelessness, despair--so many situations in this fallen world can make us feel this way. Problems and struggles can wear us down physically, emotionally, and mentally--and can even erode our faith.

But God, our loving heavenly Father, understands our feelings at times like these, and He wants to encourage and help us. The question we must honestly ask ourselves is this: Do we immerse ourselves in God's Word and seek His truth? The Bible is our guide book and for it to have an impact in our lives, we must open it and read it--daily.

Life sometimes takes us through hard places. But even in the midst of them, God is with us, and nothing can happen to us that is beyond His ability to help. The Scriptures say, "People do not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God" (Matthew 4:4, NLT). What a treasure trove we have at our fingertips.

We must let the study of the the power of God's Word. God speaks to us through His Word, and it changes our thinking and our actions. People from all walks of life are searching for answers to life's problems, and the Bible has the answer to man's deepest needs, and gives peace for today, and hope for tomorrow.

fearing Gentile, but after Philip introduced him to Jesus, he became a blood washed, born again Christian, and then a servant for Jesus himself.

An angel spoke to Philip and told him to go down to Gaza, a desert place, but it was the Holy Ghost who told him to join himself to the chariot. The Holy Ghost is the one who draws men and women, boys and girls to Christ. Angels are ministering spirits but they are not the Holy Spirit. The Angels don't call folks into the kingdom, but are only sent to minster, protect, lead and guide, those who are already in the Kingdom. Just like the Ethiopian Eunuch, many people have an interest in the bible but need for someone to explain it to them so they can understand it. The word of God is Spiritually written and must be Spiritually discerned..

Verse 35. "Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same scripture, and preached unto him Jesus. The Ethiopian Eunuch believed upon Jesus, and asked to be baptized in water by Philip, to which request Philip obliged him and a new soul was born into the Kingdom of God.

Verses 39 & 40. "And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the Eunuch saw him no more: and he went on his way rejoicing. But Philip was found at Azotus; and passing through he preached in all the cities, till he came to Caesarea." The Ethiopian Eunuch went on his way, rejoicing and Philip went on his way, preaching.

And why was the Ethiopian Eunuch rejoicing as he went along his way? Because he was now a born again believer. He went away rejoicing over his new found relationship with Christ Jesus.

He now had something to be glad about. I'll tell you when a soul finds its way to Jesus, it's a happy time. As the song by Civilla D. Martin says, "I sing because I'm happy. I sing because I'm free. His eye is on the Sparrow, and I know, He's watching, over me."

"I've got that joy, joy, joy, joy, down in my heart, down in my heart to stay." George William Cooke.

Ditch the guilt over this New Year's holiday

FCS SNAP-Ed Agent, Virginia Cooperative Extension

With each new year, many Americans resolve to ditch unhealthy foods and reclaim their waistlines. What if we resolve to ditch the guilt and reclaim our happiness instead? Healing our relationships with food and our bodies can be joyful and empowering without sacrificing health. Here's why.

Weight does not equal health.

Although it's true that higher weights can increase risk for things like heart disease and diabetes, bodies can be healthy at EVERY size. Our weight loss culture tells us that skinny is good and fat is bad. In reality, there are many people with thinner bodies who are unhealthy and many people with heavier bodies who are healthy. Regardless of your body size, focusing on nourishing and loving your body is always a healthy choice.

Enjoying food supports healthy eating patterns.

Labeling foods as off-limits can result in overeating. When we don't allow ourselves to eat something that we really want, we can thing else to satisfy our craving. We can also end up binging on the foods that aren't "allowed". Both of these eating patterns often come with a side of guilt. Instead, allow yourself to make food choices based on a variety of factors including joy, health, tradition, and self-care. Ask yourself what your body, mind, and spirit really need. Then slow down and enjoy that food. You may find you'll be less likely to overeat AND you'll ditch the guilt. "Dieting" is not sustainable.

Many people lose weight each January when they begin their new diet only to gain it back. Why? Applying rules to our eating habits and/or strictly managing our food intake is unsustainable over a long period of time. This kind of dieting is often time-consuming and not flexible enough for everyday life. Instead, regularly choosing foods that nourish your body supports long-term health.

So, if you're still thinking about your New Year's resolutions, consider committing to enjoying food this year. Think about choosing one of these guilt-free resolutions to support health and happiness:

1.Regularly try out new healthy recipes in the kitchen. You can search for healthy and affordable recipes at eatsmartmovemoreva.

2.See if you can make at least one meal a day match the MyPlate recommendation for a balanced meal. Visit myplate.gov to get started.

3.Experiment with different physical activities to find something you really enjoy doing. Try different types of dance, hiking, yoga, sports, or even make up active games with your kids.

There's going to be sacrifice involved

Dear Dave,

I bring home about $2,800 a month, and our mortgage payment is $1,100. We have been forced to take money out of our savings account occasionally over the last year or so to help pay the bills. My wife loves being a stay-at-home mom with our two preschool kids, but even she is talking about finding a daycare for the kids so she can go back to work and help out financially. How do you feel about this idea and our situation? Cade

Dear Cade,

I can't blame your wife for loving the idea of staying home with your kids when they're so young. Being a stay-at-home mom is a great thing if you can make the numbers work. Still, I'm sure it's no picnic trying to live on $1,700 a month with two little ones in the mix.

Let's look at it like a math problem with three components - house payment, income and lifestyle. Forty percent of your pay is going toward your home. That's way too much. Your mortgage payment or rent should never be more than 25 percent of your take home pay. I suppose you could look into the possibility of refinancing your home, but that's not going to solve all your problems. One option would be finding a way to generate some extra income, whether that means a part-time job nights or weekends, or pursuing additional education or certifications to get your income level up at work. Another is to sell the house and find a less expensive alternative, but I'm never a big fan of that idea — especially in a family situation — unless there's absolutely no other way to avoid bankruptcy or foreclosure.
